6.1 Bid to Buy

ABOUT BID TO BUY AUCTIONS

Bid to buy auctions functionality allows livestock users to perform day to day, anytime buying online. This allows the user to load, buy and sell livestock online on the website immediately but only to registered users of the website. The buyer must logon to his profile and navigate to the lot he wants to buy and add it to his auction basket. The website will then inform the seller that a successful bid has been received on the specific lot. The seller will then logon to his profile and accepts or reject the bid of the lot within 24 hours. As soon as the buyer and seller have accepted the transaction, a 'conditions of sale' of the lot will be sent to both parties listing the following:

6.2 Tender Game Auction

ABOUT TENDER AUCTIONS

The online auction functionality allows for users to sell and buy a specific lot of livestock on a tender principle. These specific lots are allocated a specific timeline to bid for the specific lot. The bidding process is live and interactive and users can track the bidding for the period allocated to the lot. At the closing of the lot, an email is sent to both parties (buyer and seller) confirming the successful bidder of the outcome of the online auction. The seller of the lot must then accept the final bid for the lot. As soon as the buyer and seller have accepted the transaction, a "conditions of sale" of the lots will be sent to both parties listing the following:

6.3 Real Time Auctions

ABOUT REAL-TIME ONLINE AUCTIONS

A Real-Time auction is registered on our website and is advertised to take place at a certain time. It can be any time of day but will most likely be in the evening, when buyers have had time to settle in behind their computers. There is no limit to the number of buyers who can load lots, but in the interest of effective time management, the aim will be not to offer more than 50 lots per auction.
